GOVERNOR C. H. BROUGH REMINDED OF HIS OLD HOME

When the announcement was made that Chas. H. Brough, a former Ogdan boy, had been elected governor of Arkansas, Dr. A. S. Condon, W. G. Dalrymple, Samuel L. Brick, J. H. Knauss and A. G. Horne sent congratulations, which brought the following response from Fayetteville, yesterday:

My Dear Friends:
Your beautiful letter of congratulation, coming as it did from the friends of my boyhood and young manhood and the close personal friends of my good father, will always be treasured in my personal archives. I can only hope to give one of the forty-eight of our proud commonwealths an administration honest and progressive in character, conscious all the time that many mistakes will be made.

As friends of mine during the years spent with my father at Ogdan, your wise counsel and inspiration in the story of the joint celebration been forgotten and it was good of you to remember me and my good father on the day of my elevation to public trust.

Should you ever visit Arkansas it will be a pleasure to entertain you as the guests of my wife and myself.

Sincerely, your friend,
(Signed)
CHARLES H. BROUGH,
Governor-elect of Arkansas.

The Historical Society met Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary Matson on Twenty-fourth street, Mrs. Josephine Hirst, the chairman, presenting Prof. Quivey of the University of Utah. He chose as his second lecture, following the Faust legend, "The Devil in Literature." In a scholarly and interesting manner the theme was developed, taking it philosophically, accounting for the destructive and destructive forces in man-giving the origin and form of the devil of different peoples, beginning with primitive man, tracing the different authors' interpretation along the following points:

1.—The two theories in the Bible. (a) The Genesis and Enoch theory. (b) The Job theory. "The personal devil must be admitted if personal God is admitted."

2.—Luther's opinion of the devil.
3.—New Testament: Milton, "Paradise Lost." Mrs. Browning, "Elihu," "Dante," "Paradise Regained," "The Faust Legend," "Marlowe," "Goethe," "Calderon," Byron: "Faust." Prof. Quivey concluded by reading Browning's "Paracelsus." Mrs. Matson served tea and the discussion followed. The invited guests were Mrs. Mary Watson Abbott, Mrs. James P. Casey, Mrs. J. T. TREASURER'S DOORS CLOSED AT NOON TODAY

Despite repeated warnings in The Standard, taxes became delinquent at 12 o'clock noon today—the legal time limit—and the doors of Tax collector Joseph E. Storey's office closed upon a long line of citizens who were eager to pay their taxes.

The delinquents will have to pay a three-percent penalty. The collector's office force worked hard to meet the emergency, but the line seemed to lengthen to offset their exertions. The clerks worked all day yesterday writing receipts for taxes received through the mails.

The total payment Saturday was $57,000. The treasurer estimates that half of the total of $815,000, plus, had been paid at closing time Saturday evening.

Treasurer Storey said he was sorry he legally could not extend the time of payment to accommodate those who have not received their beet checks.

THRONGS OF CHILDREN TO SEE SANTA CLAUS

Jolly Old Saint Nicholas opened his Ogdan Reception today on the third floor of Wright's Store. From the opening hour throngs of kiddies were shaking hands with their old friend and whispering into his ear the things upon which they have set their hearts for Christmas.

It's a great thing to be able to see and talk to a real Santa Claus and parents who have children who are fortunate enough to still cherish this faith should not overlook the opportunity of bringing the little tots to Toyland.

Santa Claus will be at Toyland, Wright's Store, for but a few days. He will not remain until Christmas. The idea of having him here early is to let the children see him and at the same time see the toy display that they might make their selections.

If you have a little child in your home, who still believes in Santa Claus, do not fail to let him have the pleasure of shaking hands with the children's friend. But you must do it soon, as his visit in Ogdan is of short duration.

He is alleged in the complaint, which was sworn out this morning by Sergeant C. P. Fitzgerald of the police department, not to have fired upon Mrs. F. V. Anderson, also colored, with a revolver, on the night of November 9. The shooting is said to have occurred at the residence of Mrs. Anderson on Wall avenue and was the culmination of a fight between the woman and Wilson. Wilson also stabbed the woman in the arm with a knife, it is said, during the affray. Wilson's bail was set at $1,000 by Municipal Judge G. S. Barker this morning, and Tuesday, December 12, set as the date of his arraignment.

STUART M. KOHN WINS LEGAL FIGHT TO SAVE STIELOW

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 4.—The sentence of Charles Stielow, condemned to die in the electric chair for the murder of Charles D. Phelps, a farmer of West Shelby, Orleans county, in March, 1915, was commuted to life imprisonment by Governor Whitman yesterday.

On the strength of a confession of Erwin King that he, and not Stielow, had killed Phelps, Supreme Court Justice Guy granted the condemned man a stay of execution a few hours before the time set for his death in the electric chair, but an extraordinary session of the supreme court resulted in a refusal to interfere and the court of appeals later set the week of December 11 as the time for the execution. In the meantime King repudiated his confession.

Stuart M. Kohn, the lawyer whose brilliant fight for the life of Stielow attracted nation-wide attention, is a son of A. Leo Kohn, proprietor of the Kohn Liquor company, 2438 Washington avenue.

Having saved his client's life, Mr. Kohn now takes rank by common consent, judging from press comments, with D. M. Delmas, chief counsel for Harry Thaw, and other great criminal lawyers.

WHY THE FACTORY OF J. I. SMITH BURNED TO GROUND

On Saturday the following communication to the Standard was received out of the paper:

"The Smith Bedding company, which was allowed to burn to the ground through the fire department's pump not being in working condition when it arrived at the factory. It is said, the chief and boys made a good run and were on the ground within seven minutes from the time the alarm was given and then they all worked hard, doing everything possible, from 35 to 45 minutes, trying to get the pump to do its duty, with no success. They then tried pulling the pumping engine around by hand, trying hard to start it to work and during all this time people were telling the firemen to connect their hose to the Utah Power & Light company's force which is less than a block away. The people were then told that the pump would soon be working."

"The firemen knew that such an expensive and beautiful machine like it should work, but that morning they tied the pump behind one of the less expensive trucks and pulled it back to the station. They were then compelled to string a line of hose from the Utah Power & Light company's power house to the factory, to do what little they could after such valuable time had been lost in working with the pump. And this is not the first time this same pump has failed to work. At the late fire at our Country Golf club they had some little trouble and lost about ten minutes in getting started; and at the recent fire on Twenty-fifth street, when the firemen tried to use the pump, it failed to work and for some 20 to 30 minutes the firemen toiled and worked with the engine and at last it started. But no doubt considerable loss was incurred on this account to the property on Twenty-fifth street."

"It should now be necessary for the city authorities to try and find some other equipment than those which they have at the present time, so that if some other fire should happen to occur in the city, our fire department would be equipped with machinery that would respond and would do the necessary work without any delay, that was intended for it to do. "It was first reported it was on account of the lack of water that action on the fire failed. This is not true, as at all times there is an abundance of water. The factory is located at the headwaters of all the farm land of the northern part of the city and county. The tailrace of the Utah Power & Light company runs within 150 feet of the factory, and the factory is also run by water power. "Salt Lake City is now enjoying the mattress business that formerly came to Ogdan and the greater part of the skilled labor is in Salt Lake City helping to get out the large amount of business given to the factories there. People standing by have said when they first arrived this part of the building would all have been saved. Should we now be compelled to go back to the old primitive times of a bucket brigade to save the property of the public? At the time of the fire 18 people were employed producing from $40,000 to $50,000 a year and paying a salary in the city of from $12,000 to $15,000 a year, which is now at an end. The loss would have only been, it is said, in the neighborhood of $500 and the factory would have still been busy manufacturing goods, had the pump worked. Are we still to keep such machinery, and have the city and public rely upon it to be of benefit in any future time when it would be necessary to use it?"

In this article I do not wish to in any way criticize or question the work done by the fire department members. I understand they did good work and worked hard.

WINTER SPORTS IN THE HIGH SIERRAS

Arrangements are under way at Truckee, according to the current issue of the Southern Pacific Bulletin received today by Commercial Agent W. G. Wilson, for the opening of the winter sports season, Christmas week. The high Sierras, in the midst of which Truckee is located, closely resemble in topography the surroundings of the St. Moritz playground in Switzerland, where winter sports are carried to perfection.

While other years have seen the east central California mountain summit well attended, this year's number of visitors is expected to establish a new record. Skiing, skating and sleigh-riding with plenty of snow in which to revel are the main entertainment features.
